

With a sick family member, it is imperative that we keep phone lines clear. So the elimination of telemarketers has kept my stress at level at bay. Every time the phone rings now, I expect it to be an important, possibly life changing communication.